"When Jesus had finished saying these things, the crowds were amazed at his teaching, because he taught out of his being, and not as their teachers of the law." - Matthew 7:27-28

Mark Nepo tells the story of an Indian sage who went to the Ganges river to pray. One day, noticing a scorpion struggling in the water, he cupped it in his hands and carried it to the shore. As he placed the scorpion on the ground, it stung him. The next day when he was in the Ganges praying, he saw the scorpion again struggling in the water, and again he carried it to safety—and again he was stung. The third day he returned to the Ganges and AGAIN saw the scorpion flailing in the water, and as he went to lift it out the scorpion, it said in exasperation “Why do you keep lifting me? Can’t you see that I will sting you every time, for that is what I do?” And as the sage cupped his hands around the scorpion, he replied: “Because this is what I do.”

There is a lot of meaning in this story, for like the Indian sage we express who we are by what we do. When we are stung by scorpions or unkind words or hurtful acts, it is an opportunity, albeit a painful one, for us to choose who we are in our response. When we are treated unfairly by others or by Life, those painful moments are also opportunities to choose who we are in our response. Even in situations that seem impossibly difficult, painful, and challenging... even in those moments (especially in those moments!) we are given the opportunity to give witness to who we are, by how we choose to respond.

Jesus showed us the truth of his being as he consciously chose his responses to the world around him. His conscious choice to come into this world, to become flesh among us, certainly showed us that he was willing to undergo painful experiences for our sakes. When he renounced the “normal” life of a Jewish peasant in order to become a wandering teacher and healer; when he chose to share the pain of the sick, the poor, and the sinful rather than isolate himself from them; when he chose to share his light with those whom John the Evangelist claimed “hated the light”; even when he chose to forgive those who “stung” him with a Roman scourge and Roman nails...he revealed the mystery of who he was: a “revelation” who still continues to inspire and create wonder in us. And while we may not choose to respond to every person and situation as Jesus did, his example reminds us that how we will respond to all that happens in our lives is the gift of ourselves we give to others, and to the world.

November 28 is Thanksgiving Day, and on that day we will be given the opportunity to give thanks for all the blessings God has bestowed on our lives. Typically our “thanks” are reserved for all the blessings we can count, which loosely translates as the abundance of good things and good people in our lives. Perhaps this year we might try something different and offer our thanks for the opportunities—even the difficult and painful ones-- that give us the chance to know and express who we are through our conscious choices. That “food for thought” may be the only non-fattening item on the menu for Thanksgiving! It may also be the most profound blessing we have to celebrate.

May your Thanksgiving be blessed—and may you be a blessing to others through your choices! --Pastor Craig

Five things every caregiver should know

- It's necessary - not selfish - to take care of yourself when you're caring for an aged parent or a chronically ill spouse. Overstressed caregivers increase their risk for health problems.
- Realize that asking for help is just as important as giving it. Negotiate with family members or friends to do specific tasks. If you can afford it, hire someone for housework or gardening.
- Get daily exercise and stick to a healthy diet. Activities that reduce stress can also keep your immune system strong.
- Avoid isolation. Stay in touch with family and friends, even by phone or e-mail. Share your feelings with a support group, or talk to a counselor or religious leader.
- Enjoy the time you do have with your loved one. Try to make your time together about more than the illness. Do things together like going through photo albums, listening to music, or just watching TV.

Adult Education Study: The Bible Project

Do you find the Bible to be confusing, obscure, or even irrelevant to our modern culture? Would you like a fresh look at an ancient collection of sacred texts? Our next Adult Education study will be based on the work of Timothy Mackie and Jonathan Collins, the co-creators of "The Bible Project." The Bible Project is a non-profit animation studio that produces short-form, fully animated videos designed to make the biblical story accessible to everyone. Dr. Tim Mackie is a pastor and a professor of the Bible at Western Seminary in Oregon, and his deep love of the Bible as a beautiful and inspired collection of writings is evident in every video. The animations that compose the series are very creative and well done, visually complementing the themes of each video. Tim and Jonathan have blended history, theology, ancient thought and timeless truths into very engaging and accessible videos that bring the great themes of the Bible to life! Please join us at 9:15 Sunday mornings in the multi-purpose room as we spend several weeks exploring and discussing The Bible Project! For more information, please view this link: <https://youtu.be/8Tbcofs6l3o>

All Saints Sunday November 24

All Saints day is a time to remember those departed "saints" who have shaped and blessed our lives in so many ways. On Sunday, November 24, we will observe All Saints Sunday during worship by reading the names of our departed congregation members who have died in the past year. Following their remembrance, individuals and families will be invited to come to the front of the sanctuary to light candles in memory of loved ones and friends who have departed. The departed saints of this congregation whom we will remember during this year's All Saint's Sunday are: Lavonne Osmundson, and Verie Hollingshead.

No KLAB --November 27

Congregational Meeting

There will be a congregational meeting on Sunday, November 10 to vote on the proposed budget for 2019. Absentee ballots are available in the church office.
